RURALNET project is aimed at improving female social and labor participation in rural areas, contributing to sustainable development as final objective, preventing depopulation and enabling greater female participation in economic activity and social viability to their municipalities.

Who can participate?

Rural women of Cantabria, Galicia and La Rioja, and women living in the autonomous city of Ceuta with special difficulties in work placement.

What does it consist of?

RURALNET success lies in the specialization program and in accompanying women in the work placement process, as part of personal issues such as needs and demands of women, knowledge and expectations, among others, to specify in the definition of professional profile and motivation for employment.

SOCIAL AND WORK PLACEMENT

Achieving social inclusion of women belonging to particularly vulnerable groups and rural areas and promote exchange with donor countries on good practices in this area.

ACCESS TO EMPLOYMENT

Promote access and retention in employment and self-employment of women in social exclusion taking into account the project objectives for the social and work placement of women in situations of particular vulnerability.

INTEGRATED METHODOLOGY

Conduct a program to design a customized support integrated methodology that takes into account the specific additional difficulties when women start their social integration.

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

Contribute to sustainable development, avoiding depopulation and enabling greater participation of women in economic activity and social viability of its municipalities, in addition to improving the quality of women living in rural areas and have greater difficulties to work through better qualifications for employment.
